Florida - FindLaw

There are several ways to go about changing a Florida Will. One method is to make a codicil, which is a document like a Will. It makes references back to the specific paragraphs of your Will that you want changed. Making a codicil can become very technical and should be done with guidance from a qualified attorney.

Your support order has not been changed or reviewed in the last 3 years, OR.

You can show a large change in your life. For example, an increase or decrease in income or a change in the child's needs such as the child becomes disabled. Other reasons to modify a support order include:

Adding or removing a child
from the order

The good news is that if you declare yourself to be a Florida resident, Florida will be happy to have you. The bad news is that if the state you're leaving collects a state income tax or a state estate tax, you'll have to take specific steps to terminate your "resident status" there to confirm your change of residence.
