Karna's pledge of never returning anyone empty-handed was known to all. Abusing this, Indra approached Karna, disguised as a poor Brahmin and asked for his Kavach (armor made of gold) and Kundal (earrings). Though Karna's father Surya warned him against Indra, Karna decided to honor his commitment without second thoughts.

Karna: Unsung hero of the Mahabharata. Mahabharata has always been that epic in Indian history whose heroes and characters have controversial stories. Where the Pandavas turn out to be the perfect rulers and all, there's one man who strived for excellence his whole life; and even after achieving it, he didn't get the merits.
