~~Traumatic Pelvic Surgery A Multi-Disciplinary~~

Multi-disciplinary work is the answer to this weakness, by putting the minds of more specialties again together we reinstate a holistic approach to the patient and disease.

Nowhere is this more true than in problems of the pelvis which require the collaboration of rectal surgeons, gynaecologists, urologists, gastroenterologists, radiologists, spinal specialists and physiotherapists.

Pelvic floor surgery at St
Mark ' s Hospital. The Sir Alan Parks ' Physiology Department is a specialist unit which is dedicated to the management of patients with pelvic floor disorders. These include faecal incontinence, constipation, rectal prolapse, anal pain and obstetric injuries. Alongside the provision of a service to its local patient population, the department manages tertiary referrals from other hospitals, Nationally and Internationally, for complex pelvic floor disorders.

~~Pelvic floor surgery – St Mark 's Hospital~~

Effective treatment of gynaecological and pelvic floor disorders requires a multidisciplinary team of specialists, comprising of doctors, nurses and physiotherapists. ... For those patients requiring surgery, the operation itself is of course done by a consultant surgeon.
