

Shadows In Time Highland Time Travel Romance

Shadows in Time Quincy C. Hilliard An alto sax cadenza opens this lyrical work. The simple, yet beautiful theme is introduced by solo trumpet.

A shadow is defined as the darkest area of a photo in which you can still see detail. If you see a picture of a cave opening and all is black, you don't really have any shadows (you have darkness). If you can see eyes and a hairy outline of some type of creature breathing the cool night air, you can honestly say you caught something lurking ...

The bear shadow appears for about three weeks during the fall from mid-October into early November, beginning at about 5:30 p.m. each day. It reappears in the winter, from mid February into early March. However, when the fall foliage creates a colorful canvas is by far the better time for viewing.

Shadows are created when an object, such as the stick below, blocks out some of the Sun's light. The length of the resulting shadow depends on how low or high the Sun is in the sky. Try moving your mouse pointer over the time symbols to pause the animation at that particular time.
